

LIBRA FULL MOON

Musings for Libra

The sign of Libra brings connections to beauty and balance through the Goddess Venus or the Egyptian Hathor. When we moved onto the cardinal cross at the Spring Equinox, we began this theme of balance - equal day and equal night.

This balance is like the yin yang symbol and is a dynamic equilibrium. When we pull ourselves back into balance in our lives, it is not intended that we move into a rigid and static holding, but more into something that moves like a pair of scales or a sea saw but is held steady by the fulcrum in the middle. The fulcrum represents our inner vertical alignment which connects us to the earth and sky, and which enables us to move flexibly into and out of events in life all the time “weighing it up”. The esoteric mantram for Libra, “I choose the way that leads between the two great lines of force” also suggests finding the way through by detachment and not getting caught up in forcefields that could lead us astray. The weighing up that goes on as we steady in the light and become the fulcrum suggests that behind the beauty and balance of Libra there is a developing discernment and intelligence and an increasing ability to choose wisely.
